Re: Center for Birds of Prey

Dear Mr. Lynch:

Enclosed please find information on a skilled environmental resource that I hope you'll be able to use in assisting the volunteers and wildlife professionals providing treatment and medical care to the birds injured by oil. The experts with the Avian Conservation Center, Center for Birds of Prey have extensive training and experience with treating oiled birds. The organization also provides medical rehabilitation and can help with training volunteers and other agencies.

The need to provide additional skilled manpower for wildlife rehabilitation and treatment is urgent, and I ask you to contact this group and keep me updated on the progress made to treat and protect the Gulf Coast's wildlife and avian population affected by the Deepwater Horizon spill.

Sincerely yours,
